RHONDA HAITH,

Defendant-Petitioner,

v.

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA,

Respondent.

CASE No. 07-CV-1881 W
06-CR-1970 W

ORDER DENYING PETITION FOR WRIT OF HABEAS CORPUS

On September 26, 2007, Petitioner Rhonda Haith ("Petitioner"), a federal prisoner proceeding pro se, commenced this Section 2255 habeas corpus proceeding. Respondent United States of America ("Respondent") opposes. The Court decides the matter on the papers submitted and without oral argument. See Civil Local Rule 7.1 (d.1). For the reasons stated below, the Court DENIES the petition (Doc. No. 43).

1 I. BACKGROUND

2 On August 8, 2006, Petitioner was arrested for attempting to import into the 3 United States approximately 61.15 kilograms (134.53 pounds) of marijuana. The next
4 day, a complaint was filed against Petitioner charging her with importation of marijuana
5 in violation of 21 U.S.C. § 952 and 960. Petitioner waived indictment, and an
6 Information was filed against her on September 9, 2006.

7 Petitioner entered a written plea agreement with Respondent. On March 12, 8 2007, Petitioner was sentenced to 18 months in custody.

9 On September 26, 2007, Petitioner initiated these proceedings. Petitioner's sole 10 ground for relief appears to be that she did not understand the plea agreement.
11

12 II. DISCUSSION

13 Petitioner waived her right to collaterally attack her sentence in the plea
14 agreement. Courts have repeatedly upheld the validity of appeal waivers finding that 15 "public policy strongly supports plea agreements." United States v. Navarro-Botello,
16 912 F.2d 318, 321 (9th Cir. 1990); see also Brady v. United States, 397 U.S. 742, 752
17 n. 10 (1970); United States v. Wiggins, 905 F.2d 51, 53 (4th Cir. 1990). Courts will 18 enforce a Petitioner's appeal waiver if (1) the waiver is knowingly and voluntarily made;
19 and (2) the waiver, by its terms, waives the right to appeal. United States v. Nunez,
20 223 F.3d 956, 958 (9th Cir. 2000).

21 First, a valid waiver requires that the Petitioner agreed to its terms knowingly and 22 voluntarily. See id. A reviewing court looks to the circumstances that surround the 23 plea agreement's signing and entry to determine whether a defendant agreed to its 24 terms knowingly and voluntarily. See United States v. Baramdyka, 95 F.3d 840, 843
25 (9th Cir. 2000).

26 In the present case, Petitioner entered into the plea agreement with her
27 attorney's advice and consent. (Doc. No. 13, p.1.) Petitioner represented that her plea 28 was knowing and voluntary. (Id., pp.5-6, 12.) Petitioner also represented that she was

1 satisfied with her attorney's performance. (Id., p.12.) Furthermore, the disposition
2 hearing transcript confirms that Petitioner's plea was knowing and voluntary. (See
3 Doc. No. 50, Ex. C, pp.2-12.) And contrary to Petitioner's current claim, Petitioner
4 confirmed during the hearing that she was not on any drugs or medication, and nothing
5 else was occurring that would make it difficult for her to understand the plea
6 agreement. (Id., p.2.) Thus, the Court concludes that Petitioner knowingly and 7 voluntarily agreed to waive her right to appeal or collaterally attack the sentence.

8 Second, a valid waiver must also explicitly state that Petitioner is waiving her
9 right to appeal. See Nunez, 223 F.3d at 958. A reviewing court applies contract
10 principles, including the parole evidence rule. See United States v. Ajugwo, 82 F.3d
11 925, 928 (9th Cir. 1996). Under the parole evidence rule, a court enforces the 12 contract's plain language and does not look to "extrinsic evidence... to interpret... the 13 terms of an unambiguous written instrument." Wilson v. Arlington Co. v. Prudential
14 Ins. Co. Of Am., 912 F.2d 366, 370 (9th Cir. 1990).

15 Here, the plea agreement explicitly states:

16 In exchange for the Government's concessions in this plea agreement, 17 defendant waives, to the full extent of the law, any right to appeal or to 18 collaterally attack the conviction and sentence, including any restitution
19 order, unless the court imposes a custodial sentence greater than the high 20 end of the guideline range (or statutory mandatory minimum term, if 21 applicable) recommended by the Government pursuant to this agreement
22 at the time of sentencing. If the custodial sentence is greater than the 23 high end of that range, the defendant may appeal, but the Government
24 will be free to support on appeal the sentence actually imposed. If 25 defendant believes the Government's recommendation is not in accord
26 with this agreement, defendant will object at the time of sentencing;
27 otherwise the objection will be deemed waived

28 (Doc. No. 13, p.10.) Thus, Petitioner agreed to waive collateral attack so long as the Court did not impose a sentence longer than that for the high end of the offense level recommended by the Government. Here, Petitioner was sentenced to 18 months in custody, which represents the low end of the Guideline range recommended by Respondent. Because Petitioner's sentence did not exceed the high end of the 1 recommended offense level, the terms of her plea agreement bar this collateral attack.

2 The Court is, therefore, prevented from granting the habeas relief requested herein.

4 III. CONCLUSION AND ORDER

5 In light of the foregoing, the Court DENIES Petitioner's petition for writ of 6 habeas corpus (Doc. No. 43). The Clerk of the Court shall close the district court file.
